

HMS Named to the 2017 IDC Health Insights HealthTech Rankings Top 50

Annual vendor ranking features top 50 global information technology suppliers to healthcare payers and providers

IRVING, Texas, June 15, 2017—HMS Holdings Corp. announced they have ranked No. 25 on the 2017 IDC Health Insights HealthTech Rankings Top 50. The annual vendor ranking features the leading global information technology (IT) suppliers that derive more than one-third of their revenue from healthcare payer and/or provider institutions.

“For more than 40 years, HMS has been developing innovative technology solutions for healthcare payers,” said Bill Lucia, HMS Chairman and CEO. “Our position on the IDC Health Insights HealthTech Rankings Top 50 reflects our continued focus on investing in technology solutions that help our clients improve financial and health outcomes,” he added.

For over 50 years IDC has collected and analyzed IT industry data to provide insight and guidance. IDC Health Insights systematically collects global healthcare IT revenue information and tracks the growth of the largest industry IT vendors in an effort to help both end users and IT suppliers alike make the most strategic decisions for their institutions. The data is analyzed by IDC Health Insights analysts that use their understanding of global trends and industry activities to create meaningful rankings. IDC analysts also put the information in the context of industry trends for the benefit of both the institutions that buy technology, as well as the companies that provide IT solutions to the industry.

The breadth and depth of IDC Health Insights' industry expertise differentiates IDC Health Insight's HealthTech Rankings program. This understanding helps provide client institutions—payers, providers, and other healthcare organizations—with the insight they need to drive strategic IT investment decisions.
